

Hi Marie, Just wanted to slip you a line or two about how Klondike is doing. He is now finally out of his shell. He still once in awhile growls at the cats but he also chases after them every once in awhile. He still goes under my bed but he does come out during the day now and looks at us when I am doing day care. At night is when he's always out now. He sleeps on my bed every night now and purrs all the time when we pet him where he wants more petting. He's eating great. I was getting the same kind of food that you had for him but lately I have been giving him the same food as the other cats of mine and he's been eating it. He hasn't not ate anything that I have given him. He also is so SMART AND

KNOWS WHEN I AM GIVING THE CANNED FOOD AT NIGHT BECAUSE HE LOOKS UP AT ME AND MEOWS, BEGS AND GIVES ME THAT CUTE, strong meow that he wants it and knows it's time, soooooo cute.

We all love him so much.
